OMG, how cute are these? Shabbat earrings — could you die over the little candlesticks? I'm more into the tribal bone look myself, but I seriously love these from Yontifications.com, a line of Holy Day-inspired jewelry designed by Judaica superstar Susan Fischer Weis.

Really, you need to check out the whole year — the adorable little shofar for Rosh Hashanah had me squealing like someone put baby bunnies in my sock drawer. And Sukkot's baby lulav and etrog — lady, you're killing me! The mini-matzohs and teeny hamantashen are so freakin' precious I want to become a Hebrew school teacher so I could have an appreciative audience for them! (Oh, crap, now I'm bound to get a call from the synagogue tomorrow.)

And just when I thought this accessory orgy was over, I find out they have matching necklaces!

From NoStarClothing, who may have forgotten that Jews don't drink. Much.

However, I now live in the South, where social protocol dictates that people ask what you'd like to drink before asking what you do for a living, where you're from, or who your daddy is. Your favorite cocktail reveals much about
